340-lb. beauty queen crashes through ice-covered pond!

BY RABAN QUINN

A Soviet official urged his countrymen to adopt a Western standard of beauty after a 340-pound woman crashed through an ice-covered pond while being crowned queen of a winter festival!

Iona Kacharov, 22, was not injured in the mishap that occurred during the annual Snow Queen pageant in Berdichev, near Kiev.

But Mayor Alexei Gladchev said the accident might easily have been fatal. And he implied that it could have been avoided altogether if contest judges had chosen a slim and sexy beauty queen instead of "a factory-working hippo like Miss Kacharov.

"She didn't deserve the title any more than I did," the mayor told Soviet reporters. "She won because she's a loyal Party member and in the kind of woman the old men of Moscow think is pretty.

"She only won this contest because she's a Party member?

"Personally, I think we should subscribe to the Western standard of beauty. Not all Soviet women are fat and ugly. Soviet women can be lovely to look at, too."

There was no immediate response from the Kremlin but sources privately acknowledged that Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachov is inclined to agree with the village mayor.

Miss Kacharov herself called the official's comments "inappropriate" — and insisted that she has "the physical attributes that Soviet men look for in a woman."

"Western women are skinny and weak. I am healthy and strong," she said. "Western women couldn't lift a sack of potatoes. I can carry two."

Residents of Berdichev were sharply divided in their opinions of the Snow Queen controversy. Farmer Maxim Chepelev seemed to speak for most of the men when he said that Miss Kacharov is, in fact, the ideal Soviet lady.

Housewife Frieda Varshkin couldn't have disagreed more. She said the beauty queen represented the Soviet woman of old — and called on forward-thinking citizens like herself to help move Soviet women into the 20th century.

"We should have the right to look and feel pretty, too."

LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL!

Hounded by authorities for throwing wild sex parties, Elbert Puppell decided to let the good times roll — by hosting his freewheeling orgies aboard a customized bus!

"For a lot of people, it's a fantasy," said Puppell, who came up with the idea of holding his parties on a bus after his sex clubs in and around San Diego were closed down.

Frustrated California officials say Puppell appears to have found a way around the law with his purple party bus that is equipped with beds and a jacuzzi.

"I have yet to find any municipal codes to prevent him," said Joe Shilling, an assistant city attorney in San Diego. "It was as he has finally ripped us a way to beat the system."

Puppell, 54, said he doesn't charge for admission to his rolling sex parties, but does accept donations. He believes officials are harassing him to further their careers.

But authorities insisted that it was Puppell who made the mistake and says he could pay for it by serving up to a year in jail for violating probation.

Convicted earlier of a zoning infraction for running a business in a residential area, Puppell is now accused of violating his probation by continuing to charge for admittance to sex parties at his home.

While Puppell maintains the profits he collected was a donation toward membership on his social club, authorities say he charged $5 for women, $40 for men and $25 for couples entering the sex romps.

Before Puppell took his show on the road police received a steady flow of complaints from his neighbors.

"We have reports from people who got up early in the morning to walk their dog and saw people engaged in sex acts on their front lawns, on the hood of a car," the lieutenant said.

"This is weird stuff, in our opinion," said one cop.

TEENAGER Sheri Mbuggus will deliver in January.

Stunned docs confirm . . .

Girl, 15, is pregnant with baboon's baby!

By CHARLES TULLY

Doctors say a 15-year-old girl is pregnant with a baboon's baby!

"If anyone had suggested such a thing to me a few months ago I would have told them they were crazy," obstetrician Julius Kadhi told reporters in Nairobi, Kenya.

"But now I know better. This young woman was impregnated by a baboon.

"And barring complications, she is going to have the baby in January."

Mother-to-be Sheri Mbuggus refused to discuss her pregnancy or the infant with reporters. But Dr. Kadhi confirmed that she conceived after she was attacked by a baboon in late May.

"We initially thought it was impossible for a baboon to be the child's father," said the doctor.

"But after repeated testing with an ultrasound device we are certain that the child is not entirely human.

"It has the facial features of a baboon and appears to be covered with a thick mat of hair.

"God only knows how it will behave after it is born," he said.

"The infant may be wild and helpless like a baboon — or it may swing from the chandeliers."

Miss Mbuggus' pregnancy has sparked a furious debate among doctors and Kenyan authorities.

According to reports, government officials want the child to be reared in a laboratory by trained scientists.

Doctors say the baby must be raised by its mother in the world at large.

German geneticist Herman Krieger is one of dozens of experts who have requested access to the baby when and if it is born.

He also wants to study and test Miss Mbuggus to determine how she was able to conceive a baboon's baby. "I don't understand how something like this could happen," said the expert.

"But it is crucial that we find out so that it won't ever happen again."

Added Dr. Kadhi: "We have offered to abort the fetus at any time during the pregnancy but the mother has vowed to carry the baby to term.

"She says the child is a part of her — even if a part of it is baboon."

Prenatal tests show the creature is part human — and part hairy ape!

Crippled con had to crawl to the john, lawsuit says

Crippled convict Joseph Cunningham was forced to pull himself out of his wheelchair and crawl to the toilet in jail.

And all the while, heartless guards stood by refusing to lift a finger to help, claims the 36-year-old Canadian man in his suit against jail authorities.

"The humiliation he suffered is unthinkable," said Cunningham's attorney Jeffrey Harris in Winnipeg.

Cunningham's ordeal lasted two weeks in the Headingley Jail before officials widened the door to the washroom to allow for his wheelchair, court papers say. But his attorney believes the cruel treatment would have continued if Cunningham's plight hadn't been made public, forcing jail officials to act.

Attorney Harris said the guards stood by refusing to aid his client because they didn't believe it was part of their job.

Cunningham, whose legs were paralyzed after a 1981 auto accident, was serving a six month term after being convicted of trafficking in and possession of marijuana.

Manitoba government attorney Glen McFetridge said he

HOG HEAVEN!

It's a land where the animals live like kings!

Barnyard animals have it made in Sweden, where farmers are forced to treat them like kings — or go to jail!

Under an animals' rights statute that is by far the toughest in the world, pigs are entitled to spacious living quarters, plenty of fresh, clean straw and sanitary muck.

Horses cannot be whipped. And cows are allowed to range and graze freely — all the time.

"It's socialism gone wild," attorney Stroen Lindgren told reporters in Stockholm. "If this keeps up we'll have animals running in the streets. We'll probably have to take food from hungry babies and give it to the beasts."

The lawyer's overreaction to the situation might sound exaggerated but a growing number of experts agree with what he says.

Legal scholar Stig Larsson went as far as to allege that legislators are trying to give animals the same rights as men. According to the expert, lawmakers want to:

- Prohibit the sale of cats and dogs by anyone other than the state.
- Outlaw home aquariums.
- Ban hunting and fishing.
- Regulate animal shows so strictly as heavily pigments to eliminate classes of competitions that might be considered demeaning.
- Allow all farm animals to run free even if it hurts profits and productivity.
- Let animals of all kinds breed at will.

Violations of current laws are punishable by heavy fines and imprisonment. Larsson believes that if new laws go into effect, farmers and pet owners could account for 5 percent of Sweden's prison population within the next 10 years.

"The animal rights movement is gaining worldwide support," said the expert. "In the not so distant future every civilized country on Earth is going to adopt similar laws, including the [United States."

Man sees red when his green lawn turns black

Dan Harrington couldn't believe his eyes when an asphalt truck flipped over in front of his house — and turned his yard into a blacktop parking lot!

The tractor trailer dumped over trying to negotiate a turn in front of the Swift Current, Newfoundland, man's home and dumped 17 tons of gooey hot paving material.

The stuff oozed over Harrington's lawn, his driveway, his flower bed, his garden and his strawberry patch.

Worse still, the Canadian man's 10-year-old daughter suffered burns to her feet when she tried to get through the mess to help the truck driver. He wasn't hurt, as it turned out. The trucking company has promised to restore Harrington's land and compensate him for his trauma.

But now the harassed homeowner must be having second thoughts about the site he chose to live on. Two years ago a soft drink truck flipped over in the same place and

Teen cut his mother's throat after watching TV show, say cops

Geraldo made me do it, claims accused satanic killer!

A devil-worshiping weirdo, who claims he got the courage to kill from Geraldo Rivera's TV show on satanism, sneaked up behind his mom, cops said, and slit her throat.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Six days after viewing the two-hour TV special, Jonathan Castero, 19, drove to his mother's apartment in Tampa, Fla., and carried out the Devil's work, cops said.

His unsuspecting mother, Patricia, who had worried about her son's obsession with satanism, was stabbed more than 40 times and had her throat slashed from ear to ear.

Castero hated his mother and wanted to kill her, said a police officer who declined to be identified.

But Castero didn't have the nerve to do it until he saw Rivera's special on satanism, the officer continued.

The TV show featured teenage boys who had murdered in the name of Satan, including one who stabbed his mother to death. Cops said Castero owned a bible of satanic phrases, wrote letters of allegiance to Satan, and scribbled satanic messages on his mother's apartment door.

The suspect had slipped into the evil world of the occult a few years ago after playing Dungeons and Dragons, the popular medieval fantasy game.

Neighbors and friends said Mrs. Castero was concerned with her son's fascination with the Devil, so she kept religious drawings and biblical quotes around her apartment.

A grand jury in Hillsborough County indicted Castero on a first-degree murder charge. He is being held in an isolation cell without bond.

TV show hosted by Geraldo Rivera sparked grisly slaying, claims teen murder suspect.

DEVIL-WORSHIPER Jonathan Castero, 19, killed his mom, say cops. The youth was obsessed with satanism and the occult.

Angry cancer patient has a loaded gun & a hit list, say frantic cops

By PETE COOKE

Frantic cops have launched a massive manhunt for a terminally ill cancer patient who is roaming the streets of London — with a loaded gun and a list of his enemies!

"He must be caught before someone is killed," said a detective assigned to the bizarre case.

According to authorities, 53-year-old Paul Edwards suffers from colon cancer and reportedly has only a year to live.

"He blames various people for causing his marriage to break up," an investigator said. "He says he is going to shoot them all. He has drawn up a death list of family and friends. He has worked himself up into a frenzy."

Cops said Edwards' rampage began when he took his mother and another woman hostage at gunpoint in their London home. The women spent four terrifying days bound and gagged as Edwards threatened them with a pistol and plotted his killing spree.

Then police said Edwards lured his girlfriend to his mother's house and forced her to drive him to the other end of the city where he vanished into the night with his pistol and a box of ammunition.

Authorities immediately ordered police protection for the gunman's friends and family while officers scoured the city for Edwards. "He is capable of causing a great deal of grief," a worried detective said. "He is in a very dangerous and unstable state. He is an armed and dangerous man with a history of violence who may run amok if he feels he has nothing to lose."

POLICE have launched a manhunt for Paul Edwards.

Boozer fires arrow into his eye & then goes to sleep — forever!

A man picked up a crossbow and fired a steel-tipped arrow through his eye, then refused medical attention, saying he just wanted to go to bed!

Authorities in Britain said Stuart Appleby was depressed when he came home from a pub in Newcastle upon Tyne, England.

The 28-year-old man, who lives with his mother, pulled a crossbow out from under his bed and went into the living room, investigators said.

"He pointed it at his face, but I didn't realize it was loaded, so I kept watching TV," said his mom, Clara Appleby.

Appleby then fired a steel-tipped arrow through his eye. The metal tip went through his skull and lodged in the curtains behind him.

"He pulled the wooden part out and asked me not to call a doctor. Then he went to bed," the horrified mother related.

Mrs. Appleby called an ambulance and her son was rushed to a nearby hospital. The unemployed truck driver died nine days later.

Hungry chef freeloads 54 meals!

Former chef Paul Dunn has been convicted of eating a lavish meal at a fancy restaurant and refusing to pay the bill — for the 54th time!

A judge in Sydney, Australia, fined Dunn $180 for wolfing down a $80 meal at a Chinese restaurant and failing to pay up.

But the very next day, the cheapo chef dined at another five-star restaurant, then informed the staff he couldn't pay the bill.

He was fined $300 for that offense and ordered to compensate the restaurant.

Dunn, 46, pleaded guilty of the latest charges, telling the court he was drunk when he committed the crimes.

Victim files a $200G lawsuit after boo-boo

Topless waitress burns her bust in a bowl of soup!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Topless waitress Teng Mo-hua claims she suffered painful injury and public humiliation when she reached across a table to wait on one of her customers — and burned her left breast in a scalding bowl of bird's nest soup!

The 23-year-old Hong Kong waitress filed a lawsuit against her employer, the Eats 'n' Treats Topless Restaurant, asking $50,000 for her second- and third-degree burns and $150,000 in damages for the embarrassment and humiliation she suffered in the incident.

"I will not be able to work topless anymore because of my burn scars," she said in a pre-trial statement. "But most of the scarring is on the inside — in my mind. When the accident happened my boss and the other people laughed at me and refused to help. I'll never forget the way they made me feel."

Miss Teng, who has a 38-inch bust, said she had complained to her boss before about serving boiling-hot beverages and soups while nude from the waist up.

She said that she and several of the other waitresses had suffered minor burns over the 15 months she had worked at the restaurant, but her employer took no action to prevent them.

On the night of her accident, Miss Teng said she was waiting on four customers during dinner hour, serving them soup and egg rolls.

She says she leaned across the table to place an egg roll near one of the four men, accidentally dunking her breast in boiling bird's nest soup. "I screamed and grabbed my injury and everyone there just laughed," she said.

"The pain was terrible, but no one took it seriously.

"I asked them to call a doctor, and they wouldn't. They told me I was making a fuss about a small mishap — but my breasts are not small and the pain was awful.

"I want Eats 'n' Treats to acknowledge the injustice done to me and I want damages for what I suffered," the young woman told the court.

"It may be a joke to them — but to me this was horribly, terribly serious."

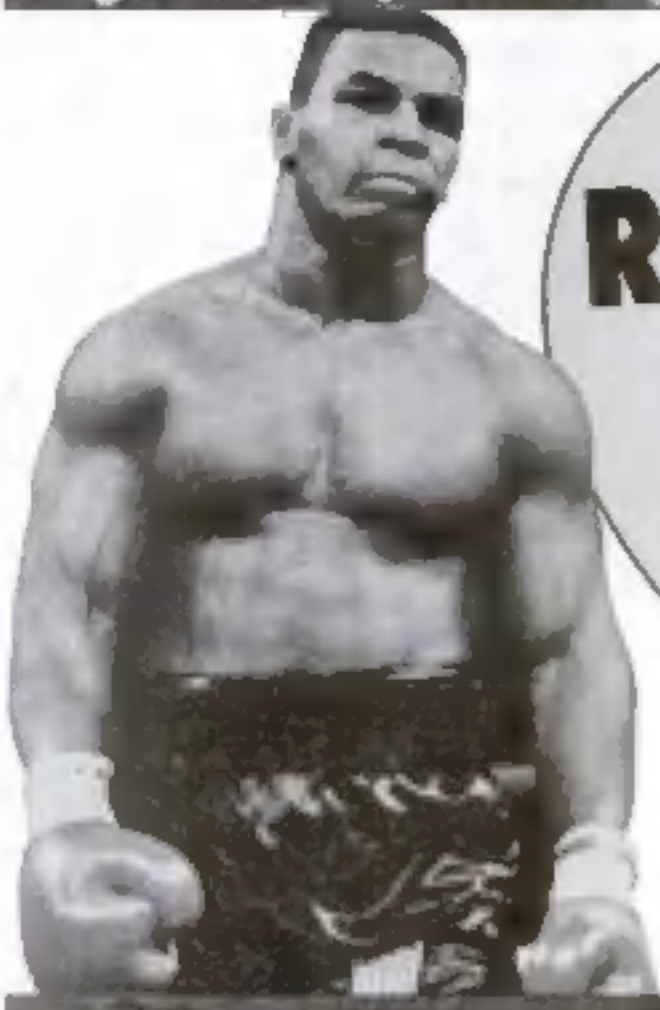
Anguished cry of boxing champ Mike Tyson's mom



Robin broke my son's heart!

PLAYBOY? — Mike's recent all partying is just an attempt to hide his hurt, says foster mom.

By KATE KLINGER

Heavyweight champ Mike Tyson's recent dating spree with beautiful women is the boxer's brave attempt to battle the pain of his broken heart over the split with wife Robin Givens.

That is the claim of Mike's foster mom Camille Ewald who raised the champ from age 13 and still cares for him at her Catskill, N.Y., home when he's training for fights.

"Of course, I'm upset," she said. "I feel bad for him."

Camille said Mike's recent partying in Las Vegas with various beauties doesn't mean he's over his heartbreak.

"When you're hurting, it doesn't matter how much you go out or who you're with — you're still hurting," Camille, 83, told The NEWS.

"It's going to take time for him to get over this."

Camille says the divorce from Robin has been a real blow that's left the champ emotionally reeling, because along with all his boyhood dreams of being a great boxer, Mike also dreamt of having a family, a real family with a lovely wife and kids.

"He did dream of getting married and having a home and wife and lots of kids running around," she said.

"From the beginning, he was thinking of this with

Camille says Mike, 22, made a big mistake in marrying so early.

In the meantime, she hopes he'll go out and date more.

"Maybe by 25 or 30, he'll get married again. There's nobody who is grown up enough at 20. You first have to go out and have a good time before you settle down," she said.

As tough as the slugger is in the ring, Mike is a softy outside, she said, and doesn't yet know how to protect his feelings.

HORROR IN THE JUNGLE!

Pretty wildlife student is gored to death by angry mother rhino protecting her calf!

By SUSAN HAMSON

Research student Joanna Copley left her homeland and found her death — under the pounding feet and slashing horns of an African rhino.

The British brunette, 22, was studying baboons at the Mkuzi Game Reserve in South Africa when the beast spotted her and mowed her down. A fellow researcher carried her body six miles to the nearest campsite, but doctors believe she died instantly from her horrific wounds.

"It's a dreadful shock," said the girl's father, Dr Malcolm Copley of Shrewsbury, England. "She was so happy to be doing research in Africa. What a terrible end for such a promising life."

Pretty Joanna went to South Africa to work for her PhD on the psychology of baboons. She had been at the Mkuzi Reserve in Natal Province only two days when she and fellow researcher Stephen Whitehead went out on foot to search for spoor.

The pair were resting in a clearing when a female rhino approached with her calf. Park officials believe that the sight of the two humans frightened the calf and sent its mother into a murderous rage.

Without warning the deadly beast headed for Joanna, charging her with the speed of an exploding locomotive. The two-ton rhino slammed into Joanna, goring her as Stephen watched in horror. Then it trampled her repeatedly before running off into the wilderness. Frantic Stephen, a South African national, desperately tried to revive his companion but she did not respond. The wounds inflicted by the rhino were so terrible she is believed to have died within seconds.

Sobbing from shock and anguish, Stephen picked up Joanna's body and staggered through six miles of rough terrain to bring her back to civilization.

He arrived hours later exhausted and weeping from his ordeal.

"This is a terrible tragedy," said a spokesman for the Natal parks board.

Joanna Copley might now be savagely gored and trampled by an outraged mother rhino (left) when her young calf (below) was inadvertently frightened at the sight of the hapless human.

Thirsty kid poses as a cop — to buy booze!

By JOE BIDDEN

A 17-year-old boy tried to get around age checks to buy beer by donning white cast-made from a policeman's uniform — but wound up getting a close look at some behind-the-scenes cops.

The thirsty kid walked into a liquor store in Port Angeles, Wash., wearing a police belt with handcuffs and holster, a loaded .357 Magnum pistol and a real police badge bought at a garage sale.

But an off-duty sheriff's deputy spotted the copycat cop as a phony when he saw him buy two six-packs of soda. The youth was charged with impersonating an officer and being a minor in possession of liquor.

JOHN LENNON IS COMING BACK!

SPIRITUAL spirit of pop legend John Lennon has new songs to sing, says psychic.

IN CONTACT . . . Billy Thorne

Dead rock legend John Lennon is preparing to make an earth-quaking comeback from beyond the grave and go on tour with a sensational album crammed with new songs.

That's the mind-boggling claim of British psychic Billy Thorne, who says the ex-Beatle's spirit has contacted him from the world of gloom and doom.

According to the 43-year-old London seer, John's soul is stuck on the border between heaven and hell until he corrects the spiritual mistakes he made while alive.

"John has vowed to put all that right, then dance on both sides and I'm helping to make him [illegible]," says Billy. The psychic claims he has already written down the lyrics to one song for the new album that John has dictated.

ROYAL pups romp on outing with Queen Elizabeth

Queen's pooches seeing shrink after nipping spree

Queen Elizabeth's pampered pooches are reportedly being sent to a dog shrink after terrorizing palace servants by biting them on the ankles.

The Queen currently has nine pooches, six of them are cuddly corgis.

The other three are dorgies, hot-dog-shaped crosses between corgis and dachshunds.

The doggie dippers are being treated by spiritualist Dr. Roger Highland who is Britain's top dog shrink with degrees in zoology and psychology.

Dr. Highland refused to comment on his royal pet except to note that ankle-biting is a fairly normal hobby for corgis.

"They are, of course, collie-type dogs, originally bred for cattle herding," he said.

"As such, they will chase anything, particularly ankles."

So far, the palace has refused to make a statement about the seemingly rabid corgis. However, empress bellhops, the feisty snappers have already wounded guardsmen, policemen, footmen and the royal ringmaster.

Furthermore, for the pesky pups, no royal ankles have been harmed. — New Haven Register and London Mail on Sunday

MILTIO mom Sandra Clarke, 37, is divorcing her son in bitterest ending to their marriage.

MOM AND SON WHO WED ARE GETTING A DIVORCE!

HEARTLESS Dale Creasey, 21, has dumped his mom he married a year-and-a-half ago.

By SUSAN JAMISON

In a tragic ending to one of the world's most bizarre marriages, a mother who wed her son is divorcing him!

Sandra Clarke, 37, and Dale Creasey, 21, pledged eternal love in an unofficial ceremony before Sandra went to jail for incest in 1987.

But Mike said the marriage would never work — and they were right.

While Sandra pined for her son in a lonely prison cell, Dale found a new love and disappeared. He's in hiding and Sandra is infuriated.

"He is a rat," said the attractive brunette from Lincoln, England, who is out of jail after serving her nine-month sentence. "I suffered for that boy because I loved him too much. Now he has snubbed me.

"I don't want to see him. He no longer exists as far as I'm concerned."

Only a year and a half ago Dale and Sandra made headlines around the world when they refused to part — even if it meant they must face arrest for incest.

They were featured on the May 10, 1987 issue of The NEWS, swearing they would love one another forever.

The pair had met when Dale, who was adopted by his aunt and uncle, went in search of his natural mother. He and Sandra hit it off instantly. "I couldn't believe it," said Dale, whose real mother was just 16 when she gave him up. "I kept saying to myself that she can't be. She's too young, too attractive.

"I felt an immediate closeness. Then I said to myself, 'You can't think that. It's wrong. She's your mother!'"

But in spite of his good intentions, Dale eventually fell head over heels for his mom.

Neighbors suspected their incest, and their suspicions were confirmed when the couple invited friends to their unofficial "wedding."

The marriage was sanctioned by a local clergyman, who reluctantly agreed to marry Sandra and Dale in the belief that it was the only way to prevent the pair from living in sin.

But their happiness was short-lived. Police officials investigated and arrested Sandra. The incest case was registered to nine months in prison.

But when she got out of jail, Dale's order had ended — and now the callous youth has dumped his bride.

Sandra is fuming and says she'll contest the petition she mistakenly signed that will soon be granted her a divorce.

"I'm absolutely furious that I've become latest in one of these no-no crimes," said heartbroken Sandra, whose three earlier marriages also ended in divorce.

"But I took it all because I loved him. It was a real blow when I found out what he was up to.

"After what we both went through there is no way we could have a normal mother-son relationship. I don't even want us to be friends."

Women see red over man with X-ray eyes!

Embattled bureaucrat Vince Birkhead has sparked a strike by hundreds of furious female office workers — who claim vile Vinnie can peer right through their clothes with his X-ray eyes!

Four outraged ladies who toiled alongside Vinnie at a public housing office in Liverpool, England, stormed off the job, charging that his piercing hazel eyes made them all feel naked as jaybirds.

How to make others secretly DO YOUR BIDDING with the astonishing power of

AUTOMATIC MIND COMMAND!

Here's how to get started in just 3 minutes . . .

Dear Friend:

How many times have you wished you had the power to control the thoughts and actions of others without their knowing it . . . to make them do your bidding . . . to get you the things you want . . . to make them love you?

Now you can do all these things and more with the astonishing power of "Automatic Mind-Command"!

Yes, with "Automatic Mind-Command" you'll be reading the minds of others . . . you'll be using The Power to make them do your bidding . . . you'll be getting the things you want . . . you'll be controlling the lives of others!

Sound impossible? Well, it's not! Thousands of people have already discovered the secret of "Automatic Mind-Command" . . . and they're using it to make their lives happier, richer, more exciting than they ever dreamed possible!

And now it's your turn! In the next few minutes you're going to learn the secret of "Automatic Mind-Command" . . . you're going to learn how to use The Power . . . you're going to learn how to make others secretly DO YOUR BIDDING!

Are you ready? Then let's get started!

CONTROL YOUR FRIENDS OR STRANGERS!

You can use it to control your friends at parties, one at a time or in large numbers, at any time, and ANY WAY YOU LIKE!

For example: You go over a friend's for a drink. The minute you walk in the door he says "Sorry. You don't qualify for a free right now. However, if there's anything else I can do for you, I'd be glad to . . ." Then up a flight, two turn changes which you let him know what "Automatic Mind-Command" is working. "In fact, we'd be glad to give you $1,000 more than you asked for. And say, you were nice, and we like personality! Thank you so much for coming by!"

Impossible? You'll be doing things like that every day without even thinking about it. As soon as you need something done, it's done! The people who do these things for you will actually feel that they did it on their own!

FUN POWER—TOO!

You can have a lot of fun with this power, too. Look how Evelyn C used it at work . . . One day, while sorting papers, she was angrily inclined why she had to make so much copy—and scolded her in front of everybody (which was nothing, but meant to herself for she had just learned of the "Automatic Mind-Command" . . . Suddenly the boss apologized for being a "pain-in-the-neck." "Please . . . I'm sorry," he said, in front of everybody. "I didn't mean it at all to hurt!" And he told her what a wonderful person she was! When Evelyn turned the power off, the boss just stood there with an open mouth, wondering what made him say all those things!

Think what the power can mean in your life. You meet someone . . . and it's there! You want some affection . . . you'll be surprised! You want power and quick . . . the world stands at your command!

NO MORE SECRETS WILL BE KEPT FROM YOU!

People who think they can hold back the facts will never think enough of you! You use the "Automatic Mind-Command" on them, and they'll sing like meadowlarks. Now I was at his wits' end when she tried to find the money she'd put aside to pay the rent . . . it was gone. A frantic search through the house turned up nothing. There was only one possibility left . . . the shell Billy. A look of surprise crossed his face. No—he hadn't seen any money. But Mona didn't believe him, and started using "Automatic Mind-Command" to find out if he was telling the truth. Suddenly Billy reached into his pocket and took out a roll of money. After giving her the money, he acted as if nothing had happened!

Think how many secrets come to light in all around you! Things your spouse won't tell . . . your neighbors won't tell . . . even your boss won't tell about . . . ALL BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN JUST FOR YOU! You'll be able to find out what's been going on behind your back . . . what's really on their minds . . . what they're thinking about you . . . what they're going to do next . . . and you'll be able to do it all without their knowing!

Almost too easy, because I haven't told you yet about the best part of "Automatic Mind-Command."

You don't have to bother your head to learn people. Just "automatically" tell you what they're thinking. Perfect strangers will be walking up to you and asking, "How did you?" Can I do anything for you?" There will never be a moment that "Automatic Mind-Command" is working that you, yourself, won't be amazed and unbelievably eager to help you.

INSTANTLY YOUR LIFE IS CHANGED!

Stunned eyewitnesses back up British bobby's incredible story

Hairy spacemen kidnap cop!

By DICK DONOVAN

Rookie cop Martin Cohen says he was kidnapped by "furry" space aliens during an evening stroll — and dozens of witnesses say his incredible story is true!

The 21-year-old British bobby said he was bathed in a glowing purple light that levitated him skyward as he walked in a park in Rawdon-hay, an English village north of Leeds.

"It was about 10:30 p.m., and I was walking to the Harewood Arms Hotel to have a drink with a friend when suddenly I saw a purple glare," Cohen said.

"The next thing I knew I was being lifted and carried off the ground. My body went numb and my head started spinning.

"Then I saw forms that appeared to be women. They looked like they could be human. Then I just blacked out."

From Cohen's description, the furry creatures looked like Chewbacca the Wookiee in Star Wars.

Cohen says he has no recollection of where he was taken or what happened to him from the time he blacked out until he came to sprawled on the ground, eight hours later.

Cohen's unconscious body was found early the following morning by park jogger Mike Ferrari, 35, who said he saw a glowing purple light that seemed to come out of nowhere less than 100 feet in front of him.

"At first I thought I was just seeing things," Cohen said. "Then I noticed the body [illegible] lying on the ground. The [illegible] face to face with the [illegible] the light appeared.

"My first impression was that it was a dead body. I was very frightened and in a state of shock. When the man I now know to be Martin Cohen came to, he was very weak and in a cold sweat.

"He just kept [illegible] and on about being [illegible] about being a weird experience."

Even before Cohen's shocking abduction story was made public, several people reported seeing the ominous purple glow shimmering in the park near the Harewood Arms Hotel.

"We had many calls from people who wouldn't identify themselves," recalled Angela Friend, an investigative reporter for the Yorkshire Evening News.

"We made a careful investigation into the story, but we weren't able to come up with much," she told The NEWS. "It's just one of those things that can't be proved or disproved. It's a real mystery."

. . . and then return [illegible] safely to Earth!

Runaway wheel mows down housewife!

By ROBIN JAMES

In an incredible freak accident, poor Linda Sadler was knocked for a loop like a bowling pin by a runaway 200-pound wheel that thundered down the highway by itself for two long minutes — after breaking off the truck she was riding in.

Linda's hubby Brian, of Avon, England, who was driving the truck, pulled over to the side of the road about a mile down the highway after he saw sparks coming from a rear axle and realized one of his wheels was missing. They got out to survey the damage.

Amazingly, the runaway wheel appeared four minutes later as it came rolling down the road at some 20 mph. It whipped into Linda, who was standing there waiting to sidestep. The impact tossed her onto the air like a bowling pin and then it kept rolling, knocking her unconscious.

Fortunately the petite 5-foot-2, 112-pound woman was uninjured except for a broken leg.

"She's lucky to be alive ... that wheel is almost as big as Linda and it weighs more than 200 pounds," said Brian.

"It seems to have gotten trapped in a gutter, perhaps like a bowling ball, and hooked poor Linda right over. The crash barrier I tried to grab her when I saw the wheel hurtling towards us, but it was too late.

"I was totally flabbergasted. It was like something out of a cartoon. It would be funny if it wasn't so serious." [illegible]

. . . after it breaks off the truck she was riding in!

Brian's frantic efforts to rescue his wife by pulling her out of the way of the deadly wheel of doom as it rammed into her head on.

"If Brian hadn't grabbed me ... I could have been killed outright," she said. "When I came around I had no idea what had hit me."

Police were stunned by the accident.

"To call it unusual would be an understatement," said a police spokesman. "The chances of something like this [illegible]"

In happier days, Linda Sadler was knocked over by 200-pound wheel that came loose from a truck driven by her husband Brian.

Killer hubby tries to mummify his dead wife!

Weirdo hubby Robert Goddard took of a van for seven weeks — strangled his young wife and while he tried to mummify her, carried her corpse around in the [illegible]

He tried futilely to preserve the remains of his dead wife, Margaret, 32, by constantly covering her body with talcum powder and wrapping her in bedsheets.

"It was like something out of a Victorian melodrama," said a detective in Middleton, England.

Goddard, 32, was sentenced to life in prison for choking his divorce-seeking wife with a belt. He put her corpse in a large trunk and placed it in the back of a van he had stolen.

"By the dates of the newspapers he had stupidly covered up the trunk with paper and was trying to mummify it," said prosecutor Paul Purnell.

"He loved her and didn't want the divorce," said Purnell.

"And he couldn't bear the thought of putting her body in the ground."

Cops eventually caught up with Goddard in the stolen van. He was charged with murder when they peeked into the trunk.

The killer's lawyer said he had been worried about the divorce and the prospect of losing his two small children.

History was wrong about cats

In the Middle Ages in Europe, stray cats were usually fed by poor, lonely old women and, when the witch hysteria erupted, many of the old hags were accused of practicing black magic.

Unfortunately, the poor little kitties that shadowed them for food — especially black ones — were deemed guilty of witchery by

A taste of astrology!

Zodiac predicts your favorite foods

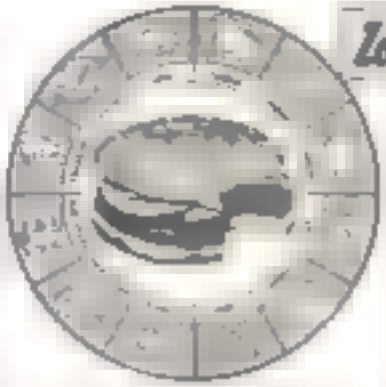
By SUSAN JIMISON

If you want to impress an important friend or win the affections of a special someone, check out their signs before you ask them to dine.

According to a fascinating new book, the planets rule people's tastes in food as much as they influence other aspects of life.

"People born under the same sign share the same food interests," Steve Weiss, author of Signs of Taste (Bramhall House, $8.95), told The NEWS. "And food is an excellent way to get to know someone and get close to their personality.

"If you know a person's birth date, you can predict where and what they like to eat."



Weiss, a restaurant consultant and astrologer, describes the 12 major food profiles at length in his book, but provided a shorter rundown on each sign for readers of The NEWS.

● Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): People born under this sign are food snobs through and through. For them, it's more important to use the right fork and eat the "in" foods than enjoy the taste of what's on their plates. Food for Capricorns is a tool to get what they want rather than something indulged in for pleasure. Favorite snacks: potato chips. Ornery.

● Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): These people are great experimenters with food and they love to eat at normal eating times. For them a hot dog at the ballpark is better than a thick steak they eat alone. They're the folks who will try raw fish without blinking an eye. Favorite snack: grocery store rookies.

● Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's geeky, geeky, geeky when it comes to eating for Pisces. These people are chicken hot dog cheeseburger of food and an introvert and they have strange likes and dislikes. Pisces loves quiche, pasta and oatmeal-raisin cookies. Their favorite snack is French fries.

● Aries (March 21-April 19): These folks are at the head of the line when corporate heads eat exotic foods. They have offbeat restaurants and think any strange food is interesting. Favorite snack is Cheerios.

● Taurus (April 20-May 21): Notable Taurus is a ram [illegible] whom it comes to food. Given a chance, people under this sign will really go into eating, sniffing the aroma of wines and savoring every drop of a rich cream sauce. Favorite snack: They never eat junk food.

● Gemini (May 22-June 21): These people are on the run all the time and they eat on the run, too. They'll gobble fast food and junk food, but they rarely slow down long enough to have a decent meal. Favorite snacks: pizza, corn chips.

● Cancer (June 22-July 21): Cancers love food, all kinds. They are especially fond of down-home cookin' and they want it to be first-rate.

If you want to know where to eat, watch which restaurants Cancers go to. Favorite snack: potato chips.

● Leo (July 22-Aug. 21): Lady Luck likes good company and good food. They want to be entertained with their food and when they rank they want to be told they did a great job. Favorite foods are nachos, lasagna and egg rolls. Favorite snacks: corn chips, Goldfish crackers.

● Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 21): Virgos are extremely discriminating diners. They notice everything about a meal — the flavors, the textures, the presentation.

They eat a variety of foods in small portions. Favorite snack: popcorn.

● Libra (Sept. 22-Oct. 23): It's hard to please a Libra at the dinner table. These people enjoy only the finest foods and wines and they are quick to notice sloppy servers or presentations. They are all-natural eaters and their favorite snack food is cheese-flavored chips.

● Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22): When it comes to eating, Scorpios have strong likes and dislikes. Anything red — ketchup, raspberries, tomato sauce — gets their attention.

These folks really like spicy-hot foods and strong flavors. Favorite snack: fast food burgers.

● Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): Sagittarius will eat you out of house and home. They love anything and everything in the way of food. There's no one more enthusiastic and adventuresome about food than the Sagittarian.

Favorite snack: nachos — or anything else you have on hand!

Incredible mummy shocker!

Dead man lay under the bed 6 years!

By Irwin FISHER

Prospective homebuyers filed through a vacant house for six incredible years without realizing that the mummified corpse of the owner was curled up under a bed!

Henri Bernard, 47, apparently suffered a fatal heart attack while alone in his home in 1982. It isn't clear how his body wound up under a bed.

House was for sale but nobody noticed the body

But authorities confirmed that Bernard lay there until the house finally sold earlier this year.

"At least 100 people looked at the house after we put it up for sale and not one of them found the body," realtor Catherine Dalle told reporters in Vichy, France.

"The house had a strange odor," she added. "But nobody could figure out what it was or where it was coming from."

"As far as I knew the owner had abandoned the house. His relatives told me he just disappeared."

Bernard's remains weren't discovered until Mrs. Dalle sold the house to an unidentified university professor in late November.

According to reports, a cleaning lady stumbled across the body while changing sheets on the dead man's bed.

"I almost had a heart attack," Marie Lemay told reporters. "The body was perfect. You could not tell if the man had been dead for a week or 10 years. I was amazed."

Police Lt. Alain Bonjean said the discovery of the body allowed investigators to close a file that had been open since Bernard was reported missing in 1982.

"We searched the house several times and never found a clue," said the officer.

"It's really quite bizarre. Police departments all over France were keeping an eye out for the man. And all the while he was under his bed."

The cop said that Bernard's remains have been buried in a Vichy cemetery.

"It was a long time coming — too long," said Lt. Bonjean.

"But the poor man who lay under a bed for so long has finally been put to rest."

Punk fashion went sensational overnight when Angela Lewis went wild tearing and shaping his 15-inch long hair into this bizarre style. But at only 10 she was little more than a child. It all came down around his ears as it started to take its unbelievable weird look while he was in the streets of London.

10-year-old boy guns down school bus driver, say cops!

An angry 10-year-old boy settled a grudge against a school bus driver, cops said, by shooting her in the head with a handgun.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Bus driver Jean Hampton, 46, was unconscious and in critical condition after she was found slumped over the steering wheel of the bus in Port Arthur, Tex.

"There had been bad blood between the two ever since school on the bus," said Assistant District Attorney Roger Fry.

Mrs. Hampton was booked back to the bus barn after dropping off a load of students at Dirk Dowling Elementary School when she saw the youngster riding a bicycle, said Fry.

"She apparently opened the bus door to talk to him and was shot," he said. "She's been unresponsive and on life-support systems ever since."

The schoolboy, whom cops declined to identify, was taken into custody a short time later and locked up in a juvenile detention facility.

"We don't know what conversation took place between the two just before the shooting because Mrs. Hampton isn't able to talk to us," said Fry. "But she had had disciplinary problems with the boy on the bus — she threatened to report him for truancy before classes had already started," he said.

"We know it's not normal for a 10-year-old boy to be riding around on his bike carrying a handgun," said Fry.

Cops have the weapon they believe was used in the shooting and have questioned the boy. D.A. Fry declined to say whether the youngster had admitted shooting Mrs. Hampton, a mother of two.

Newborn survives freezing night in just a diaper

Despite freezing temperatures, a newborn baby, wearing only a diaper, was reported in fair condition after she was found abandoned in a pickup truck.

Officials in Fredericksburg, Wisc., said the baby girl was discovered by a passerby at 7:30 a.m. yesterday in the parking lot of Wisconsin's Dreamland Resort.

A concerned worker found the girl when he got into the truck to go to the garage.

Investigators say the baby had been left overnight in the vehicle.

How does Santa stay fit as a fiddle at age 600?

By RAFI KLIMKER

How does Santa Claus do it? He's 600 years old and still in terrific shape — able to scurry up and down chimneys like a young whippersnapper complishes nearly impossible feats at Christmastime."

Some 50 researchers at the center looked over Santa to find out what he must eat and do to be in such great shape

One thing's for sure, Santa's heart is in great shape Experts say he must naturally produce high density lipoprotein (HDL), the good kind of cholesterol, that helps protect against coronary artery disease and heart attacks

"With plenty of HDL in his blood Santa can eat with gusto all the cookies, milk and hot chocolate left on fireplace mantels," said one of the researchers

Santa's eyes are in amazingly good shape for an oldster. The proof is in the way he can spot house numbers during his deliveries.

"He's probably getting plenty of vitamin C," said a researcher. "Our preliminary research indicates that vitamin C may protect against cataracts that impair vision.

"Perhaps he is eating oranges while making rounds in Florida or California."

Santa also has terrific night vision so he must be getting plenty of vitamin A from foods like fish, liver, butter cheese and veggies.

Santa's healthy glow — especially in his cheeks — shows good overall good health. This means he gets his fill of vitamin K from foods like cereals beef liver and wheat germ. Studies hint that vitamin K not only boosts the immune system against diseases like cancer — but may reverse the aging process.

Santa must also drink plenty of milk enriched with vitamin D. Normally, the skin produces vitamin D from exposure to sunlight, but at the North Pole, Santa has little chance for a tan.

Experts also believe Santa gets plenty of daily exercise — otherwise how could he have the endurance to make all those deliveries?

"He must be doing something up on the North Pole that tests his endurance, perhaps running across ice floes?" said one of the researchers.

Every kid in this town is going bald

Soviet medical experts admit they are baffled by a strange phenomenon that has struck a Russian town where all the children are going bald.

Officials said residents in the Ukrainian town of Chernovtsy, near the Rumanian border, have begun to panic after 83 children went completely bald.

According to scientists, the town was not contaminated by radiation from the 1986 accident at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant and no other environmental cause can be found.

Experts who have examined the children say they are perfectly healthy and normal except for the KRISTY Delaney, left, lost her life while on a mission of love for her brothers and sisters, four of whom are shown above with Kristy and her mom.

Girl dies trying to play Santa for her poor family

By DICK DONOVAN

Poverty-stricken teenager Kristy Delaney was crushed to death when the wall of a fire-gutted store collapsed — as she searched the rubble for Christmas toys for her brothers and sisters!

When rescuers pulled 16-year-old Kristy's body from the debris, she still clutched a scrap of the plastic bag she used to hold the toys she found.

Wall of burned-out store falls and crushes her as she searches through the rubble for toys

"It was just little five-and-dime stuff," Potawa (Okla.) Police Chief Bob Hendricks said. "It was stuff she wanted to give to her brothers and sisters at Christmas."

Brown-eyed, brown-haired Kristy was just one of eight children her 38-year-old divorced mom Judy struggled to support on the $325 she got each month from her ex-husband's Social Security.

After paying for food, secondhand clothes, utilities and the rent on their blue, three-bedroom house, there never was much money left over for the kind of Christmas the children wanted.

But Kristy was determined to give them something this Christmas," the teen's anguished mom told The NEWS. "We never had much. I was never able to give them the things they wanted. But we had our love. We had a happy family. We had each other."

"That day . . . the day she died . . . Kristy said she was going to go to the store that had the fire so one of the night had some toys to give on Christmas presents.

"I told her not to go because it was too dangerous. I told her we didn't need the toys that had been getting the toys to a plastic bag.

"Her friend J.J. Malone said there were toys scattered around her when she was found outside the store. So I guess she was looking for Christmas toys. It's the kind of thing she would have done for her brothers and sisters."

When a funeral home demanded that Judy pay $3,000 before Kristy could be buried, the kindly townspeople of Potawa reached into their own pockets to pay the bill. But there wasn't enough left over for her prom," Judy recalled. "It had been marked down from $100 to $60 and Kristy was going to save to buy it.

"The store gave it to me for nothing so that Kristy would have something pretty to be buried in.

"I was happy about that because Kristy and I were real close. I was her mother, her big sister, her friend.

"I'm having a hard time understanding that she's gone. I look for her everywhere and I see her everywhere. She was such a beautiful, loving little girl.

"Now she's gone and I miss her terribly. So do her brothers and sisters. Christmas just won't be the same without her. It won't ever be the same."

Dying for a smoke

An 81-year-old hospital patient, hooked up to an oxygen nose tube, was nearly burned to a crisp in a fire sparked when he tried to light up a cigarette, said authorities.

The man, a cancer patient, was reported in critical condition with burns over 40% of his body at Mercy Hospital in Oklahoma City.

This is what my unique vitamin formula has done for my hair at 50...

Why not find out what it can do for yours...by accepting the first full month's supply of it, FREE, plus 2 other FREE GIFTS for you!

You See, If You Have Problem Hair, Read This— At 38, I Have To Cut 3 Inches Off My Hair Every Two Months. Otherwise, It Might Very Well Grow Right Down Past My Waist.

And so why have I developed a special Hair Vitamin formula that helps make it that way, and I'd like to send you some free just to prove it to you for myself.

The full details are below!

I've included the absolutely astonishing photograph at the right here, which was taken by myself and 21 days after I had been photographed head-on and straight up and almost every strand of my hair exactly.

Now I'd like you to look at the unretouched photograph over there — especially that if you have a responsible down there. — a few. And ask yourself one thing, please:

Is it by any chance, either shocking your eyes a bigger or a bloody old wrapper from after a 16-year-old woman who is not here to be the person that she should even be?

I know that I have been the case of either, the case of my hair, the hair of life and strength until the very end. But it is never easy, but I'll tell what I did.

And now with the height of that hair having that I would give more for it than I did at the age of 16 when I was over 20 years old, and I got the kind of growth because that don't know how to give that to the kind of stuff. And I'm asking to spend one short month of the rest, and you ready to see if my vitamins can help your hair look like mine — grow like mine — shine like mine — despite the fact that you, and only you know the way to find your body, and your hair. My absolutely greatest wish that I should have that you read on.

And To Prove The Power Of These Facts, I Have To Tell You Just A Little More About My Own Hair Right Now...

First of all, because of my photographic assignments, I now keep my hair really 21 inches long. And it is still as thick and as strong that I can literally take a comb through it. And it has so much life and shine that, when I did a TV commercial for a luxurious hair company, the producers asked one of the staff to lather my hair because it was so unusually thick and luxurious.

Second, and even more important, some of my friends in the business I will not name them, in a modest way as a favorite phrase. And so I myself grow older and older, more and more concerned about my hair, and I myself grow thinner, and thinner, and thinner, and less and less and less. And I'm sure that despite the fact that you're so much younger — whether or favorable reasons or anything anything at all there — that you don't have time to give yourself the "Full Treatment" anymore, and that you also do have, many people also.

Members that members, does the "Middle-Aged Problem" look pretty like from well past the? For you never realize that I have been a hair-conscious fanatic for over 20 years — that I have thought and read and talked about hair for over 20 years — that I have thought about it and talked about it and read about it and studied about it and experimented with it for over 20 years — and that I've spent a FREE lovely like that.

So Let Me Put It As Bluntly As This —

Gutsy granny shoots burglar with rifle he stole from her

A gutsy granny grabbed a gun from a burglar who had just ransacked her house — and shot him in the leg when he tried to run away.

"He was messing with the wrong woman when he robbed my house," said angry Alberta Phillips, 58. "I could have killed him if I'd wanted to. I just aimed to wing him."

Mrs. Phillips was returning home at 1:00 p.m. to discover a side door which she took a habit leaving [illegible] "I knew at once someone had been in the house," she said.

The burglar and a companion had ransacked the place and made off with $100 in cash and a rifle and $10 in the house.

But it was a mistake. Just when he thought he'd got away with the [illegible] she said. "He had the rifle. I grabbed it from him and shot him in the leg."

"I had a shell in the chamber and I aimed to shoot him in the leg. I didn't want to kill him, but I wanted to stop him."

Mrs. Phillips told the crook to stand still while a neighbor called police.

"He put his hands in his pockets and whipped out a knife," she said.

"He waved it in my face. He began backing up and started running away."

"I guess he didn't think I would shoot. I fired once over his head and hit him in the thigh with a second shot."

The suspect kept on running and was long gone when police arrested Lupe Arreola. Albert Scott, 31, an hour later when he went to a hospital emergency room for treatment of a gunshot wound in the thigh.

Think twice before le[illegible]ing into marriage

Just because your heart goes pitty-patty and your body chemistry is all out of kilter, that's no sure sign you've finally found Mr. or Miss Right.

That caution comes from noted psychiatrist Sol Gordon, professor emeritus at Syracuse University and author of Why Love Is Not Enough (Bob Adams, Inc., $6.95).

In fact, says Gordon, "the notion that 'love' is enough to sustain a relationship" is an overly popular one — there's much more to a successful marriage than flaming passion which is fleeting at best.

Here are some of Gordon's general guidelines for the kind of person you should never even consider marrying:

- A person who is overly self-centered or insecure — because that's always a sign of dependency, loneliness and feelings of inferiority.
- A person who keeps "just like" a parent with whom you had a bad relationship.
- A lover who constantly whines "Are you sure it's me you love?" Or: "Do you really love me?"
- Any partner whose values regarding material goods are radically different from yours.
- A partner who's desperate to marry as soon as possible.

Couple put on X-rated show in photo booth!

Two lusty lovebirds got caught with their pants down when they stepped into a photo booth to make love — and unknowingly entertained hundreds of passersby.

The passionate pair climbed up the railroad terminal photo booth for 40 minutes taking pictures of themselves in sexy poses, not knowing that the curtain only covered them from the waist up.

All the while, commuters on trains in Reading, England, gawked and stared at the garish act.

"Some of the passengers complained," said Sgt. Dan Evans of the local police force. "It was real X-rated stuff."

"They were moaning and groaning like mad," said eyewitness Martin Nicholls, 27. "It was all you could do to hear the station announcer."

Police were eventually called in to halt the kinky party. They stopped the couple — a blonde woman and a red-haired man in their 30s — but released them later without bringing charges.

The lovers said they had no idea their sizzling clinches were in public view.

SCRAMBLED EGGHEAD!

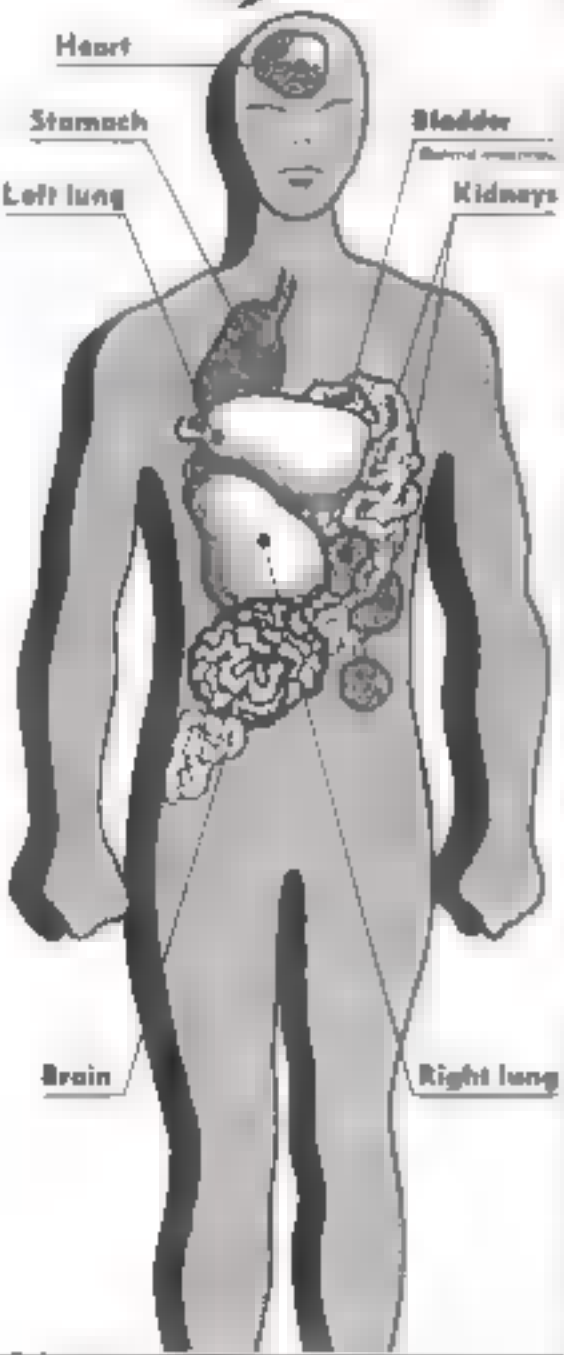

DIAGRAM shows scrambled positions of Chinese person Li

By BEATRICE POTTER

Chop suey Chinaman Li Pino has insides that are totally mixed up — with his heart inside his skull, his brain in his abdomen and his kidneys where his stomach should be!

The amazing 46-year-old man is making medical news in Beijing, where his bizarre physical condition was discovered only two months ago.

According to a recent issue of The Annals of Chinese Medicine, the university professor's scrambled internal organs were detected after Li complained of a pain in his right side. X rays revealed the pain was coming from his brain, which was located approximately where a normal person's liver would be.

"The man is a brilliant scientist who has been responsible for at least 40 inventions at work," said Dr. Chi Tsung-pi, editor of the article on Li. "He was in excellent health, but was under a great deal of stress.

"We determined that the pain in his lower right side was a massive headache from too much stress.

"We found that Li's internal organs are all in the wrong place in his body. His stomach, his heart, his lungs, his kidneys, his bladder, his brain — every one of these organs is misplaced in the body.

"While it is not unheard of for one — or even two — organs to be out of place in the body, this is the first case in which a living human being has been stocked with such bizarre displacements in such numbers."

Chi Tsung-pi, an internist, said he and his colleagues found that Li's right lung was tucked behind the brain in the lower back. The left lung was above it, but lying sideways in the chest cavity. The two kidneys were in the lower left portion of the chest cavity, where the heart might be in a normal person.

The kidneys were connected to the bladder, which by means of a pair of ureters. The heart [illegible] especially for a middle-aged man.

"Our studies of this fascinating patient have been done mainly by using special radioactive dyes to take pictures of the internal organs," Dr. Chi said. "We would like to open him up, but of course this is not possible unless he has a need for surgery later on.

"Mr. Li describes some sensations that appear to be caused by his unique physical state.

"For example, when he is hungry, he feels pangs in the upper right part of his chest cavity, where the stomach is. And when he exercises vigorously, his head pounds."

Doctors say they will keep in touch with Li, a father of three, and run tests on him from time to time.

"He is truly a national treasure," Dr. Chi said. "We should study him very closely especially for a middle-aged man.

Animals lost a friend, but gained a fortune!

During the last years of his life, lonely old John Gardiner had no one to talk to but the birds and animals in his garden. And when he died, he left nearly $2 million to care for sick and abandoned creatures.

The Dr. Doolittle of Prescot, Wales, willed just $4,000 to his human friends when he died at the age of 78. He left the rest of his fortune to the RSPCA and Britain's Dispensary for Sick Animals.

"His wife has died and there were no children, so he spent all his time with the animals," said neighbor Dorothy

Window washer takes a 60-foot death fall trying to spot Michael Jackson

A coroner's inquest ruled that a window washer who fell six floors to his death may have been trying to catch a glimpse of Michael Jackson when he lost his balance.

Britain eccentrics said Tuesday Jane, visiting for the inquest

Kirkham, 19, was cleaning the windows of a hotel suite where the pop star was staying when he fell.

"I don't understand how he fell, but Michael Jackson was staying in a hotel across the road and girls were shouting," said Thomas Walters, who worked with Kirkham.

"He could have leaned over to have a look at what was going on," Walters said.

Truck driver Jean Plant said she heard the teenage window washer screaming as he plunged from a sixth floor ledge and saw him hit the pavement.

"He almost landed on a woman in a fur coat, but she just glanced down and carried on walking," Miss Plant testified at the inquest.

"People were coming around the corner and just walking past the body, ignoring it," she added.

"It appears Kirk slipped on the wet ledge as he tried to catch a glimpse of his boss Michael Jackson or tried to reach another window on the building," Coroner Dr. Paul Knapman ruled.

One guy cooks a meal for 10,000

Malaysian caterer Kharuddin Adnan single-handedly cooked dinner for 10,000 people and he hopes the culinary feat will enshrine him in the Guinness Book of World Records.

The dishes, served to government officials and guests in Kuala Lumpur, required 800 chickens, 10,000 shrimp, more than 2,000 pounds of meat, about 1,100 pounds of vegetables and 40 large pots of rice.

Mom in labor 50 hours gives birth to dead baby!

By DICK DONOVAN

Elderly midwife Rosalie Turpening stands accused of manslaughter because a woman she was tending gave birth to a dead baby — 50 hours after she went into labor!

In a pre-trial court hearing in Ceres, Calif., Susan Cocea testified that as the labor pains increased she had asked to be taken to a hospital, but was told by Mrs. Turpening that hospital care wasn't needed.

Mrs Cocea's husband Phillip, however, finally took her to a hospital where their baby daughter was born dead two hours later.

"The baby was beautiful but she was dead," sobbed the mother, who had delivered a perfect baby with Mrs Turpening's help in 1974.

But the 53 year old midwife, who said she delivered five of her six grandchildren claims it was she, not Mrs Cocea, who had urged that she go to hospital when the birth was delayed.

"I've delivered hundreds of babies," Mrs. Turpening told The NEWS. "I've never had a sick baby, a deformed baby, a premature baby or a baby in trouble before until this one.

"I was just doing her a favor by being there. I wasn't there to deliver the baby. There on specific after the baby died, she turns around and accuses me of killing her baby."

Mrs Cocea testified that while receiving prenatal care Mrs Turpening told her she boosted regular calcium supplements and coffee enemas to cleanse the toxins from her system.

She said Mrs. Turpening also urged her to eat garden plant flakes because "they make very plump babies."

Prosecutor Deputy Dist Atty Mrs Turpening was charged with manslaughter in the death of another baby several years ago but the charge was dismissed.

She was originally charged with murder in the death of the Cocea baby but that charge was later reduced to involuntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Turpening's lawyer Richard Murphy said that his client is being persecuted by the state medical board.

Testimony continues.

HOT-BLOODED elderly Salvatore Perrotta went too far when his faithful wife Concetta said "no" to romance.

Wife, 72, won't make love — hubby locks her in closet 4 months

A 78-year-old hubby with a yen for some lovin' tried to seduce his wife, but the 72-year-old woman refused — so he locked her in a closet for four long months!

Gray-haired Concetta Perrotta was finally freed from her cell-like room by police. But even after the ordeal she said she loves Salvatore, her spouse of 50 years, and does not want him punished. "Although he made me suffer for four months, he'll always be the only man in my life," said Concetta, who lives in Celano, Italy. "I am sure that he is sorry for what he did and that he cares for me. We've been married for 50 years and we never had a fight. I hope that the judge lets him come home soon. He is sick, he needs me. But I can't submit to his demands. I would feel so ashamed. Too many years have passed — we are not young any longer."

According to Concetta, the couple's only quarrel began in June. Salvatore, now a retired shoemaker, returned to his home after taking a walk and called his wife into their bedroom.

"I felt chills go down my spine," Concetta recalled. "I knew what my husband wanted. I closed my eyes and said, 'Salvatore you know I don't do those things. We've been married for 50 years and in a few months we're going to celebrate our golden wedding anniversary. Why again now? We can hold hands, we can hug one another, but this purpose isn't for us.'"

Concetta stuck to her guns and Salvatore went berserk, hitting her in the head and trying to wrestle her onto the bed. When she still refused, he threw her into a closet and locked her in, telling her he'd let her out when she decided to fulfill her wifely obligations.

Day after day, Concetta languished in the dirty closet, sleeping on a shabby rug during the long nights and steadfastly refusing her husband's pleas for sex. She didn't cry out because she didn't want to involve the neighbors in their disgraceful quarrel, she said.

Finally, when the couple's 50th wedding anniversary passed without any sign of the old lady, neighbors called police. They came to the house and let Concetta out.

Salvatore was carted off to jail and charged with unlawfully detaining another person.

WHAT IS THIS NEW FORMULAE?

Frankly—we first heard this claim made on TV, with products such as "NEW GENERATION"—PANTRON I and the HELSINKI Formular selling for $39.95 to 69.95 and lo and behold it was all basically the same formulation—Polysorbate—As outlined in the famous book "LIFE EXTENSION" The big difference is the price... ours is only $4.95 and it's the book's recommended solution—POLYSORBATE-80. Not 20 or 60 like the others, but a full 80.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

In male pattern baldness the hair follicles in parts of the scalp, spend too much time in the resting stage leaving the follicles lifeless—yet not necessarily dead - and might be induced to start growing again by using the proper growth stimulants—we know this from hair transplants which produce growing hairs in bald areas. It is well accepted that a hormone from cholesterol causes hair follicles to go dormant. To reverse this cycle, a hair growing stimulant, to absorb cholesterol in the scalp is needed. Researchers at the University of Helsinki, Finland were using a standard safe emulsifier—Polysorbate to clean scalps of patients when the unexpected happened. Balding patients grew hair. A subsequent study reported new hair growth in 80% of subjects tested after using Polysorbate for one year.

You might turn back the aging process in your scalp with The Solution #80 80—

Polysorbate 80 removes cholesterol from the scalp and is often very effective in opening up cholesterol blocked hair follicles—it's so safe—it is even used as a food additive in ice cream and mayonnaise. If it is going to work for you, you can expect to see new hair growing within 2-3 months of daily use. Average success is reported over 80% for both men and women in these letters and stories.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Use the "Solution #8" for up to 6 full months. If it doesn't work for you—return it and we'll send you a full product refund—that's a real no lose guarantee.

He was a boring bookworm until he was 93, then . . .

Wine, women and song kill romeo gramps

But he died a happy man, says niece

By JOE BERGEN

Stodgy college professor Armin Prange was a boring bookworm who never chased girls and wouldn't touch booze on a bet — till he turned 93 and suddenly became a bed-hopping, hard-drinking Don Juan!

For the last six months of his life, the wrinkled romeo lived with two sexy secretaries, puffed big black cigars and chugged two bottles of fine wine a day.

"All that high living killed him, of course," said his former pupil Dr. Erika Pfeiffer. "But at least he died a happy man."

Oddball Armin's last-ditch shenanigans left his family and friends reeling in shock.

"It's hard to believe the old goat ended up a swinger, because he was such a stuffy prude all his life," longtime teaching colleague Karl Schuster told reporters in Bonn, West Germany.

"He never got married and in all the time I knew him, he never even had a date. He was engaged to church of girls. All he ever cared about were his books and his money."

Even after his retirement in 1968, the tantalizing oldster never let his hair down.

"Uncle Armin locked himself away in his library for days on end. But occasionally he would emerge and announce that he was going to a party. He'd get dressed up in a tuxedo and top hat and head off into the night."

But when the ancient lecher began going out with a young lover named Erika 42 years his junior, the playboy professor became a real swinger.

Dressed in a sharp suit and sporting a cane, Armin would escort Erika to the finest restaurants and nightclubs in town. He would order champagne and caviar for her and a big steak for himself.

Erika believes Armin's sexual prowess was behind his sudden transformation.

"I think he was having a ball. But he was also thinking about having children with me. I figured he was going to sign up for a honeymoon in Hawaii."

But when the couple had been going steady for a year, Armin suddenly dropped Erika and began dating two other women — Doris and Maria.

Both of them were in their 30s and they were eight months pregnant.

Uncle Armin told me he was going to write his memoirs and these were the two perfect women to help him," Erika said. "He'd never gone to nightclubs or had affairs in his life."

But Armin's sexual prowess ended abruptly when he died of a heart attack.

He was stricken while in bed with Doris and Maria.

Erika said: "He'd never gone to nightclubs in his life."

My mom says he wept all the way down to the end. And as far as I'm concerned, he just finally came to his senses."

Robber had a bad day

When a man walked into a Boston station with a .22 revolver and demanded money, the dim clerk simply leaned across the counter and smashed the weapon with a hammer, said

According to authorities in Bellingham, Wash., the bizarre robbery attempt began at 2 a.m. when a gunman appeared at an Exxon station.

The clerk grabbed the revolver from the startled robber's hand and told him to get lost.

The man asked for his gun back and when the clerk gave it to him, the robber walked out the door, climbed into his car and drove away.

Rape victim's revenge — she has AIDS!

A bloodthirsty thug who beat a helpless hitchhiker senseless and then raped her knows now that he'll pay for his crime in spades — because his victim was infected with deadly AIDS!

Cops in Frankfurt, West Germany, have yet to catch the sex-crazed creep.

He snatched a 23-year-old woman — identified only as Elke — alongside a busy expressway.

"But there has been a lot of publicity about the case here and he has to know by now that he is a dropped man," said Detective Dieter Rauch.

"He's going to die as surely as if we strapped him into the electric chair."

Adding Elke, who told cops she contracted AIDS from a blood transfusion four years ago, was hitchhiking along a highway outside Frankfurt when a lone motorist in his 30s offered her a ride.

After driving several miles, the burly hoodlum pulled off the road, battered unsuspecting Elke unconscious with his fists and then raped her.

Later, he dumped her out of his car near a service station and sped away.

"It was very brutal — much more brutal than even most rapes," investigator Rauch told reporters.

"But she seems to be getting some satisfaction out of knowing that he is more than likely going to pay with his life."

The victim suffered a concussion in the attack but has recovered. — JOE PISCOPO

The little girl and her 4-year-old friend were playing with the illegal powdered drug in a sandbox outside an apartment when a 10-year-old neighbor boy saw them and told his mother, according to the sheriff's department in San Andreas, Calif.

Teens file $1.8 million suit, claiming . . .

Police chief forced us to romance — while he watched

By JACK ALEXANDER

An ex-police chief has been sued for $1.8 million by a young couple, who claim he illegally searched their car — then forced them to strip and perform kinky sex acts.

Riding sand along with Lt. Ann Bauer is the town of Riverside, Ohio, which fired him as police chief in April — six months after the couple told their bizarre story.

A 16-year-old girl and an 18-year-old youth said they were sitting in a parked car one night a year ago when Bauer told them to get out while he searched it, the suit claims.

After the search, Bauer ordered them to get back in the car and "forced them to take off their clothes and perform various sex acts on each other while he watched by the light of his flashlight," according to the suit.

"Their testimony at the time was that Chief Bauer threatened them with arrest and prosecution if they didn't do as he ordered," said Riverside Mayor Valentine Kapp.

Bauer, 48, was fired as chief and later charged with two counts of complicity to commit corruption of a minor and two counts of interfering with civil rights.

The former chief has pleaded not guilty to the charges. But an FBI agent testified in a court hearing in July that Bauer admitted the misdeeds. Bauer's criminal trial is scheduled for later this year.

The $1.8 million lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court in Middle District.

This Riverside, which has an annual budget of about $825,000, was negligent in not training or supervising the former chief of police, the suit alleges.

Riverside Mayor Valentine Kapp said the officials named in the lawsuit, but he doesn't know "what the village is going to do with an info" was judgment in the case.

Bauer has filed for disability retirement.

Flipper gives new hope to tragic tumor gal

By DICK DONOVAN

Paralyzed LeAnn Brendin is slowly learning to cope with a crippling brain tumor that has shattered her life — and her gentle, patient "teachers" are dolphins!

The 26-year-old Miami woman is battling her life primarily by swimming with the lovable, almost-human creatures at the Dolphin Research Center in the Florida Keys.

"The first time she did it she almost swallowed half the Gulf of Mexico," joked psychologist David Nathanson. "But she had the time of her life. It showed her there still were things she could do and it lifted her out of her depression.

"She told me that when she swims with the dolphins she doesn't even think about her tumors."

LeAnn made her first visit to the Dolphin Center on Grassy Key last September, almost a year after a sudden seizure brought her happy, carefree world crashing down.

Her first warning came as she poured a cup of coffee at her job as a dental assistant. Suddenly, she felt her left hand curl tightly into a fist. Then came a numbness in her left arm and leg.

"She was able to go back to work, but she got progressively worse," her mom Ann told The NEWS. "Then in December she had another seizure. It paralyzed her left side and she can barely speak. It was what they call a grand mal seizure."

Doctors tested her for almost four months, but couldn't find out what was wrong. As a last resort, they did a biopsy. That's when they found she has an inoperable tumor that's touching the brain stem."

The paralysis that left LeAnn a helpless cripple plunged her into a deep depression. The terrible frustration she felt ate away at her like a cancer. Then Dr. Nathanson brought the dolphins into her life.

Every two weeks or so, LeAnn and her boyfriend of four years, Mark Collis, travel the Overseas Highway from Miami to the Dolphin Research Center. There, supported on the water by Mark and Dr. Nathanson, she swims with the dolphins she has come to love.

"The dolphins know there's something wrong with LeAnn's body," her mom said. "They are very gentle with her. They've revived her life around."

"Swimming with the dolphins has taught her that life isn't over. She's not gone home

Tragic tourist Kevin May was killed by a giant toad.

Con let out of cell for race — and keeps going

Prison-fielder prison inmate Ron Bennett was allowed out of jail to run in a 13-mile cross-country race — and hasn't been seen since.

The fleet-footed burger was accompanied by a trackmated guard from the hoosegow in Kent, England — but he simply outran the guard and vanished from sight within minutes.

Rapid Ron, 41, was scheduled to complete a 35-month sentence in January.

"He always came back from earlier races," said an Addington Prison spokesmate.

"It's a mystery why he's gone."

Pip-squeak kid takes her mom's Cadillac for 100-mile joyride

Pint-size 12-year-old Cheyenne Champagne can barely see out the windows of her mom's '81 Cadillac. But that didn't stop her from hopping behind the wheel for a solo spin — that took her 100 miles from home!

"Honest to God, she did it," said Bob Pavelchak, a patrolman with the Byram Township Police Department in northern New Jersey.

"It's a miracle she managed to drive as far as she did without getting herself or someone else killed. I just don't know how she did it."

Cheyenne's amazing joyride began in Long Eddy, in upstate New York, after she and her mom, Kathy, had a spat over cleaning her room. She decided it was a good time to visit her divorced dad in New Jersey.

Being only 4-feet-7, she had to sit on a couple of pillows to see over the steering wheel. After hanging into her mother's other car, denting the Caddy's rear bumper, she headed for the open road.

It took her almost five hours to travel the 100 miles to Byram Township where Officer Pavelchak spotted the car weaving down the road. Pavelchak told The NEWS

"I thought it was a drunk so I followed it for a couple of miles. Then she stopped at a red light and I pulled up and had her pull over.

"When she rolled down the window and I saw this little thing sitting there on pillows, I couldn't believe my eyes. At first she said she was 14, but she finally admitted she was just 12. We didn't cite her, we just called her mom and let her take her home.

"But as far as I'm concerned, it's new for the books. She must have had a guardian angel looking out for her."

ROLLER COASTER DIETING KILLED TANKER QUEEN!

THEN: Christina had legendary hangers-on in society followed by beggars (right) does a photographer snapped photos on right as a fitness expert

Years of roller coaster dieting killed poor little rich girl Christina Onassis as surely as a bullet to the heart!

That's the conclusion of a top Harvard nutritionist who says the death of the obese heiress in Buenos Aires, Argentina last month was a direct result of her problems with weight.

"Christina Onassis literally ate and dieted herself to death," Dr. Frederick Stare, founder of and professor emeritus of the Harvard University department of nutrition, told The NEWS.

"She suffered from what we nutritionists refer to as the 'yo-yo syndrome' — grieving tremendous amounts of weight on eating sprees and then trying to take all those pounds off by starving totally down to twenty-five pounds. The stress on her heart was just too much."

DAUGHTER: Athina will inherit $4 billion shipping fortune

Amazingly, authorities based their conclusion that Christina died of a heart attack on the fact that she was found with her head in the toilet bowl of her bathroom.

But there was also specific evidence that the 37-year-old heiress committed suicide. Dr. Stare indicated that psychological problems associated with yo-yo dieting can lead to deep depression and despair.

"It affects the mind," the expert continued. "Like most binge eaters, Christina probably had feelings of low self-esteem and fits of depression, and she found pleasure only in gorging herself."

In fact, Christina's battles with obesity were both legendary and never-ending. They included:

● Grossing enough pounds to tip the scales at 240 pounds.

● Undergoing a stomach stapling operation in 1984 that reduced her weight to 160 pounds.

● Undergoing a second operation in 1985 to remove excess skin that had developed around her waist and thighs.

● Undergoing a third operation in 1986 to remove excess skin from her arms.

● Undergoing a fourth operation in 1987 to remove excess skin from her face.

● In 1988 Christina packed on 31 pounds between January and May. At the time of her death she weighed at least 185 pounds, although she considered 130 ideal.

A spokesman for the Onassis family said the $4 billion shipping fortune that Christina inherited from father Aristotle in 1975 will go to her 3-year-old daughter Athina.

Teen love slave's ordeal!

Couple bound & handcuffed helpless girl, say cops

Two fiendish white slavers, prowling city streets in search of young women, kidnapped a 16-year-old girl and forced her to do the unthinkable — become their love slave!

That's the revolting scenario painted by outraged cops in Burnaby, Canada, where the brown-haired, blue-eyed teenager was forced to endure a hellish three-day ordeal.

There is little doubt the youngster would simply have vanished into the shrouded underworld of pimps, pushers and prostitutes if she hadn't had the inner strength and courage to fight off her tormentors and escape.

After hearing the girl's tale of horror, Canadian Mountie combed the Red-Light District in nearby Vancouver until they flushed out the pair she fingered as her captors.

Sergeant Heidi Sgt. Stan Eastham identified the duo-pirts as 23-year-old Bruce Bouchard and 19-year-old Vicky Ted Mona. Both are charged with kidnapping, unlawful confinement and sexual assault.

The girl, unidentified because she is a juvenile, said Bouchard and Teitsma lured her into their car with promises of a ride home. But instead, she was bound and handcuffed, then told by the pair that she had been "bought" for an undisclosed amount of cash, Sgt. Eastham told The NEWS.

"She said the two then allowed Bruce or Vicky to sexually assault her as payment for debts they owed the men," Sgt. Eastham said. "She was their slave.

"The girl left her alone on the third day and she managed to get herself free. She found a telephone under a bed and dialed 911. But she couldn't tell us where she was.

"When the two suspects came back, they knew she had made a phone call and they tried to get her away before anyone came.

"But she managed to kick [illegible] screaming. Some people reported hearing her and we rushed to the area and found her."

Bouchard and Teitsma are being held without bond. The girl was turned over to juvenile authorities in Calgary.

"She's a rather naive girl, not at all streetwise," Sgt. Eastham said. "Her story rings true.

"Burnaby is a bedroom community and this sort of thing doesn't normally happen here," Sgt. Eastham said. "But someone did say that white slavery has reared its ugly head in Canada."

Gal tries to murder ex-hubby — now she wants alimony!

ARMAMENT: Loyola Bernier hides her face from photogs.

By PETE COOKE

A woman convicted of trying to have her ex-husband murdered filed a lawsuit against him — demanding $19,000 in alimony payments and $7,000 for a new car.

"Enough is enough," said William Weinstock, a retired 66-year-old parole officer who lives in Brentwood, N.Y.

Weinstock said his wife Bernice had been married for 30 years when they separated in 1981. Under the terms of the fragile separation agreement, Weinstock paid Bernice a monthly alimony [illegible] a month in child support [illegible] their son and their partnership tax [illegible]

Weinstock also agreed [illegible] Bernice an additional [illegible] life insurance policy.

That was the day detectives called Weinstock in and played him a tape recording of his ex-wife offering to pay a hit man $5,000 to kill him.

"I was just flabbergasted," Weinstock said.

The hit man turned out to be an undercover cop and Bernice Weinstock, now 48, later pleaded guilty to a charge of second-degree criminal solicitation.

She served 2½ years in prison, but while she was still behind bars Bernice filed suit to force Weinstock to comply with the terms of their divorce agreement.

"She wants back alimony of about $19,000 (another $7,000 for a car and she wants to be reinstated as beneficiary on the life insurance policy that she tried to have him killed for," said Pierre Sheinker, Weinstock's attorney.

"I hope to settle her just [illegible] for spite," said Weinstock, who has remarried.

The suit filed by Bernice Weinstock, who also wants her ex-husband to pay the legal bills she has run up by suing him, is not yet scheduled for trial.

Woman sues eatery over sickening ice tea order

Deborah Neubert is suing McDonald's claiming she ordered a large ice tea at the drive-up window — and employees served her a household cleaner instead.

Miss Neubert didn't discover the mix-up until she had taken the chemical brew and injured herself, her lawsuit, filed in Denver, Colo., claims.

"She took a large swallow of the 'ice tea.' Immediately she felt a burning in her mouth and throat," the suit says. It adds that she took off the lid and noticed that the liquid inside the cup "appeared murky and emitted strongly of a substance like chlorine bleach."

Miss Neubert said she went into the restaurant to complain and they dumped out the liquid and told her it was ice tea.

She says employees refused to call poison control to help her.

Gal insures breasts for $150,000 . . . each!

SABRINA got married after a few grabbed at the hair

Sexpot pop singer Sabrina is so certain that her chesty curves are responsible for her success — that she's had her breasts insured for $150,000 each!

The sizzling Italian songstress decided to become the gal with the $300,000 chest after a crystal ball in England made a wild guess at her outstanding talents.

"I must protect my biggest assets," pouted Sabrina. Anyway, Hollywood stars insure their teeth and legs so why shouldn't I insure my breasts?"

As she noted, Sabrina's statistics aren't to be sneezed at, being slow but definite! Tonight bombshell Mary Hart squired her eye-popping legs for $1 million each.

Flyweight veteran star Joan Collins took out a policy of $1 million on what she considered her most important feature — her eyes.

Even male stars get into the act. Jacker Bruce Spring steen had his voice insured for $10 million with Lloyd's of London.

Sabrina's ever-popping chest has already involved her in a lawsuit with a former singer in her group. Angelina's agent Angelo Pecchielli had the audacity to say he helped Sabrina get her big start in show biz so he is entitled to a piece of her action.

'I must protect my biggest assets,' pouts pop singer

Sabrina was outraged by the accusations and now the two are feuding in print.

The super singer was forced to have her breasts re-insured after she had them enlarged to prove her point.

Good Samaritan didn't know the man he helped just killed his wife, say cops!

By PETE COOKE

Good Samaritan Alfred Gilbert gladly offered to give an injured man a ride home — only to discover later he'd given a lift to the hit-and-run driver who killed his wife, police said.

Betty Gilbert, 69, who took a job in a fabric store to earn some extra money for Christmas presents, was on the way to work when she was killed in a car crash three blocks from home in Deerfield Beach, Fla.

Authorities said 19-year-old Richard Watson was behind the wheel of the car that plowed into Mrs. Gilbert's Dodge. Bruised and bleeding, Watson fled the scene on foot, but stopped when he saw Alfred Gilbert, 72, changing the tire (flat on his car in a condominium parking lot, police said.

"He was cut on his hands and face," said Gilbert, a retired soldier. "He said he had been in a fight. He asked for a ride and I said, 'Sure.'"

Deerfield Beach police Lt. Jim Tyson called it "an incredible coincidence. It's like the guy was being a nice guy and gave him a ride not knowing that he killed his wife three minutes earlier."

After he'd returned home Gilbert received a call from his wife's boss, saying she hadn't arrived at work. Minutes later Gilbert got a call from a friend in the neighborhood telling him about a bad accident in which someone had been killed.

Gilbert rushed to the scene and identified the body as that of his wife of 48 years.

The heartbroken husband said he always kissed his wife when she left for work, but hadn't that morning because he was busy with his car.

"I never had a chance to say goodbye and tell her, 'I love you,'" he said. "I'm just lost without her. I don't know what I'm going to do."

Watson later surrendered to police and was jailed on a

Ticked-off son gets even with dad who cut his inheritance

FURIOUS Geoff Stanbridge plowed his tractor into the living room of his rich father's house.

Take that, tightwad!

Furious farmer Geoff Stanbridge rammed a five-ton tractor into his millionaire father's home — because the old tightwad had slashed his inheritance!

By RICK DONOVAN

Geoff said he had toiled night and day for 40 years for a lousy $118 a week believing that he would someday inherit the 170-acre farm near Chesham, England.

Then his 68-year-old father revealed he planned to divide the farm equally between his five children — and Geoff knew a fuse.

"It was the last straw," 36-year-old Geoff declared. "My brother and sisters never lifted a finger to help me work the farm. Learning they would get equal shares just finished me off. So I decided to drive the tractor into his living room. I plowed into it four or five times and did a hell of a lot of damage.

"He deserved everything he got after I put in so many years of back-breaking work."

Geoff, the father of five, said his dad paid him a paltry $118 a week to run the farm. Out of that pittance, he had to pay rent for the rat-infested, tumbledown dump he lives in within sight of the old man's luxury farmhouse.

Geoff carried out his demolition derby as his stunned father watched helplessly. When it was all over, Geoff's dad had to be taken to a hospital and treated for shock.

EXPERTS say 3-foot-tall killer ants may be the result of some scientist's experiment gone haywire.

Eyewitness watches

GUIDE Jorge Chacon was born to pygmy and eaten alive by ants the size of elephants.

Cemetery bigwigs give grieving mom a shocking ultimatum:

Move flowers or dig up your baby!

MOM Julie Wenham and her son James, 2, at Bella Luke's decorated grave.

Grieving mom Julie Wenham has been handed a brutal ultimatum by cemetery bosses — "remove the flowers from your dead baby's grave or dig him up!

By DICK DONOVAN

"Rules are rules — we can't have our lawn mowers inconvenienced" was the cruel rebuff to mum Julie that her baby's grave remain untouched.

The tiny grave in Tonbridge, England, is adorned with pretty flowers and has sparkling ornaments at each corner, all placed there by Julie as a loving shrine to her dead infant son Luke.

But officials at Tonbridge Cemetery say the grave is in an area reserved as a lawn section that doesn't allow planted or potted flowers.

And she has been warned that the flowers will have to be removed or the baby must be moved so the plot can be added to conform with the rest of the section.

"There's no way I'm moving Luke," the shocked 23-year-old will stay there — and so will the shrine."

Baby Luke fell tragic victim to cot death when he was just 16 weeks old, despite frantic efforts by his father to revive him with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"I never really had time to hold my Luke before he was taken from me," Julie said as she sat with 2-year-old son James at Luke's graveside.

"This shrine allows me to have a real memory of him and I feel close to him when I place fresh flowers on his grave."

The Tonbridge village officials, however, are unmoved by Julie's heartbreak. They have told her responsibility for the dug-up rests on the shoulders of the funeral director who handled the burial.

The baby, the officials explain, should have been buried in another, less restricted sec-

9-FT. ANTS ATTACK EXPLORERS IN SOUTH AMERICAN JUNGLE!

MONSTER ants crawled out of the mountainous jungles around ancient ruins like these.

By RAGAN DUNN

A Belgian explorer claims to have been attacked by ants as big as elephants while he explored ancient ruins in central Bolivia!

Fernand Bleyen, 46, said he managed to kill two of the creatures with six shots from a .45 automatic. But he wasn't able to save guide Jorge Chacon, who was eaten alive while Bleyen watched.

"It was a nightmare come true," Bleyen told reporters in La Paz. "The ants were 9 feet tall and had pincers as big as tree trunks.

"I didn't know anything like that even existed. They're either evolutionary leftovers from the age of dinosaurs or the result of some mad experimentation."

Bolivian officials refused to comment on Bleyen's report. Sources did confirm that the government is taking seriously and plans to investigate before the end of the year.

Bleyen said he and Chacon encountered the monster ants while studying prehistorical ruins in the mountainous jungles west of Pampa Grande.

The creatures scaled a sheer cliff, appeared, and attacked without provocation.

"Jorge saw them first and screamed," said Bleyen.

"I turned around just in time to see one of the ants capture Jorge in its pincers.

"Another one grabbed hold of his leg. Then they tore him to shreds."

Bleyen instinctively fired at the ants with his .45 automatic. He said he killed one — then watched as the dead monster was carried off by its companions.

"I was shaking so bad I couldn't even reload my gun," said Bleyen. "Thank God they were more concerned about the dead ant than they were about me.

"If not, they would have eaten me, too."

Bleyen said that no more than two dozen of the giant ants appeared on the Bolivian mountainside. But he said he had an eerie feeling that he was being watched by hundreds more.

Skeptics have suggested Bleyen's story might be exaggerated. But at least one top scientist believes the explorer is telling the truth.

"I've seen caterpillars that weighed as much as 17 pounds and grew to lengths of 5 feet and more," Dr. Antonio Alvares Roney, the world-renowned expert on South American insects, told newsmen. "Tribal legends mention the existence of giant ants," he continued.

"But I will have to reserve a final opinion until I am able to examine one myself."

The expert said that he will set traps for the monster ants as soon as he can get financial backing.

"The cost of such an undertaking will be enormous," said Dr. Roney. "But we must find out more about these ants before it is too late."

Cop chewed out for burping on the air

By PETE COOKE

Officials called a veteran homicide detective on the carpet after a computer fingered him — as the officer who burped over the police radio.

Det. Ron Lemke, 32, and two of his partners on the Miami, Fla., Police Department were transferred out of the homicide unit and faced disciplinary action over the broadcast burp.

The trouble started when hundreds of officers on duty heard a belch over their radios, but no one would own up.

Lemke and his partners denied responsibility to a man like while two of his partners covered for him by claiming Lemke didn't have a radio at the time of the burp.

But a police computer that logs radio transmissions spit out the number of Lemke's walkie-talkie when it was programmed to find the source of the belch.

"The officer who burped did it as a joke," said police spokesman Raymond Lang.

"But a burp as a joke is not in keeping with the importance of the police radio.

"Air time is very precious out there at a time and any one of them might need to get on the air in an emergency situation."

Lang said police department officials were more offended by the officers' cover-up attempt than by the actual burp itself.

"Not only was the burp offensive, but I think the more serious aspect is that the officers tried to cover it up," the department spokesman said.

Lemke and his two partners were transferred to other investigative units while officials tried to decide what to do about the incident.
